

Hey Wen,

Obviously, since this is mostly your ideas I don't have much to edit or correct but I think I can give you a few helpful comments in you writing your essay. I enjoy what I understand as your topic, applying chaos theory to economics, and I can clearly see that you are also very interested in such, but I am not 100% clear on whether your essay is actually about that. Your ideas are clearly strong and everything you have bolded is going to add great strength if you add on to all of those ideas. One big problem I think you can fix easily and also use as a way to expand on your ideas is the unnecessary length of some of the sentences you are using, especially toward the end of the paper. Another thing that would add strength to your paper would be to add more structure to your paper and organize your ideas into paragraphs not only sections within your topics. And including an intro and conclusion would add strength.

Overall I think you should focus on finding the right balance between providing enough detail to make sense while avoiding unnecessary complexities. You have a strong topic and I can tell your ideas are strong as well, I hope your paper turns out great!
